Pipeline tunneling its way under San Miguel Avenue

In late August, tunneling under San Miguel Avenue began to allow for the passage of the county Water Authority's $130 million project, the La Mesa-Lemon Grove Pipeline.

According to Kathy Feilen, assistant resident engineer for Morrison-Knudsen, the tunneling from Lemon Grove Avenue to Massachusetts Avenue is expected to be completed in six months, with progress estimated at about 50 feet per day.

She stated that soil tests, done before the project began, indicated that there would be no rock formations impeding the tunneling. The only anticipated problem, said Feilen, is encountering some ground water.

Much like coal mining, the tunneling process utilizes a conveyor belt to move the loosened dirt to where it is placed into muck carts which are then hooked to a miniature "locomotive" which runs on an actual track. Feilen said that about 14,000 cubic yards of soil will result from the tunneling.

The contractor opted for tunneling rather than trenching for pipe installation as first planned due to narrow streets, low power lines and the abundance of underground utilities which made the cost of trenching comparable to that of tunneling. The city had originally requested that tunneling in that area be considered.

Tunneling is also planned to begin in spring under the Broadway/Massachusetts Avenue intersection, to lessen the impact on the business district.

The pipeline, which will run from Mission Gorge Road to the Sweetwater Reservoir, is slated for completion in mid-1993. Tunneling is also being done under the South Bay Parkway and through Cowles Mountain.

In Lemon Grove, the pipeline runs west along Carlisle Drive, north on Skyline, under San Miguel Avenue, and north along Massachusetts Avenue.

Standing directly in front of the crane which is located on Palm Avenue just east of Lemon Grove Avenue, you can peer into the entrance of the water pipeline tunnel which is being dug from Lemon Grove Avenue to Massachusetts Avenue. Barely visible are the air shaft and train tracks going into the tunnel and containers used for lifting the dirt out of the work area to the street level.

More high school governing board candidate profiles

by Lindy Magner

Part 2 of 2

Eleven candidates are running for the two Grossmont Union High School District board seats open in the November 3 election.

Incumbent Kenneth Whitcomb, though filing for his seat, has dropped out of the race. Those seeking election are: Michael Harrelson, Carol Nickell, Robert Shield, David Kidder, Debra Lessard, Antonio Orosco (incumbent), John R. Hood, Alfonsina Davies, George Vanek, Ada Reep and Susan Wolfe-Fleming.

• Antonio Orosco - (incumbent). An industrial engineer with a son attending El Cajon Valley High School, Orosco was appointed to the board in March 1991.

He feels he has been the "peacemaker" on a divisive board, and would like to continue in that role. He would also like board members to "be more accessible" to parents and the community.

Orosco feels that, as board members, "We need to get away from the ivory-tower syndrome and go out and talk to parents on an informal, regular basis; we shouldn't just be talking to them when they're coming to us with a problem."

He believes that every student can be motivated and should be encouraged to at least attend a community college after high school.

He would like schools to offer credit for community service performed by students - a concept he said is included in the board's mission statement, but has not been adopted as policy.

Orosco supports the separation of church and state, and feels that only if there was a consensus of the community to allow prayer in schools, should it be considered.

• John R. Hood - A San Diego City School District science and math teacher, he has a daughter attending Valhalla High School. Also, he has served as a member of the Alpine Union School District board for the past 10 years, with his current term ending in 1994.

He explained he would most likely resign his Alpine board seat if elected to the Grossmont Union board which he sees as more in need of what he can offer.

"The board is lacking vision as far as the budget is concerned. I want to make sure enough money goes to the classrooms. In my daughter's classes, there is a lack of textbooks and what they do have is old and outdated," he said.

"When 18 percent of their budget goes for administrative salaries when the state average for this size district is 14 percent, it shows their priorities are in the wrong place," he added.

Hood supports school-offered breakfasts, stating, "its difficult to concentrate on classroom work when you're in need of food."

He supports the separation of church and state.

• Alfonsina Davies - The daughter of board member Dr. Thomas Davies, she is the director of pupil services for the Ramona Unified School District. She is running for the board because of her "commitment to public service," and stated she will not be "anyone's rubber stamp."

She feels that the current board is suffering a "lack of communication."

"This district is moving in a downward spiral. The responsibility for success or failure of a district is dependent on the board - the board shouldn't be delegating that responsibility to the administration," she said, adding that she would like the board to look closely at the needs of students.

She supports the separation of church and state, though noting that there are "many interpretations of that." She stated she is not affiliated with any group.

• George Vanek - A retired San Diego State University administrator, he has a child entering Granite Hills High School in January.

"I'm very much concerned with the quality of education at the high school level. From what I've seen, students who were coming to SDSU were very ill-equipped to cope with the requirements of a university."

He would re-establish the board's priorities, putting the "average" student's needs before those of special students.

"Programs like bilingual education and all the state categorical programs are now backed up in part with taxpayer monies. The average students are being short-changed."

He believes the board needs to shift funding away from administrative needs toward classroom needs.

Vanek recently served on a grand jury which investigated education countywide, and said he was "shocked" to find that little oversight of school boards exists.

When asked if he favored allowing prayer in the schools, he stated he favored a moment of silence which would not necessarily be used for religious purposes. He added he is not associated with Religious Right groups.

• Ada Reep - A small business owner with a daughter attending Helix High School, Reep has been active in various PTAs for 18 years. She is running so that parent and student views will be better represented.

"We need more of the parent and community perspective in this time of hardship; we need to all work together and pull in the same direction."

She added that board members need to be open to new approaches so that "students and families feel better served."

She would like to change the requirement that students repeat an entire semester if they fail one course during that period.

"I think it would be better to have students repeat just that one subject."

Reep would also like to see the vocational education courses upgraded to better prepare students for a high-tech marketplace.

She supports the separation of church and state.

• Susan Wolfe-Fleming - A special education instructional aide at La Mesa Middle School, she was a candidate for county supervisor (District 2) in the May primary election.

With a son attending El Capitan, she decided to run on the suggestion of a colleague.

"I have experience working with young people, so this seemed like something for me."

Wolfe-Fleming is associated with the Green Party which is centered around environmental issues. As a board member, she would like to reduce energy waste at schools and install drought-resistant plants on all campuses.

And, Wolfe-Fleming would explore a retirement plan for faculty which would offer bonuses for early retirement. She would encourage community involvement and "new ideas."

When asked if she favored prayer in schools, she commented that she supports the separation of church and state.

Memories

The Lemon Grove Historical Society meets in the library on the first Thursday at 1:30 p.m.

Everyone is welcome, especially anyone who might have something to contribute to the "History of Lemon Grove." As a charter member and one who is getting long of the tooth, I am of the realization that I am becoming somewhat "historical." Going back to the early days of the Burns family in Lemon Grove - 1955 - and looking around for some of the dear faces of which we were so fond, there are many who are not here anymore. To those who are, and especially to the descendants of those "historical people," I make this plea.

Dollie Nottingham, one of our more youthful looking "oldies," is the current president of the Society. She has put out the call for oral histories from anyone who can contribute memories of the "old days." Much as we would prefer to the contrary, 1955 is historical, and thereabouts or before is a golden era to recall. The idea is to sit down with a tape recorder and to ramble on about the old days. Even if you don't think of them as the old days, they will be sooner than you think. We are calling upon all who can contribute an oral discourse of family, or events, or observations that will permanently record how it was back then. I did it with the Swimming Pool Association, the 1957 incorporation election, the Recreation District election and the evolution of Lemon Grove Park. The tape is a one-sided view and needs to be balanced with other recollections of those same times and events.

I called upon Dr. Amorita Treganza to make several tapes of such things as the first Miss Lemon Grove and the lemon. The pioneer of vision care in Lemon Grove and the liaison between Lemon Grovans and Mexico, she also has been involved in just about every civic project which has occurred here.

Then there is the Peter Shea family with flame-haired Pat who can also give us much remembrance since about 1945. Dr. Bob Swenson and Nancy were Lemon Grovans when we arrived and could add much to the historical records. If Harry Griffen would open up - even over and about the "water thing" which has consumed his life - our archives would be vastly enriched. Buck Buckner on Kiwanis, Byron Netzley on the school district and

V. J. Dorman on the legal profession in this small but wonderful town would be enriching. Wally Dorman could provide a wealth of the human side of Lemon Grove over the years, and the venerable Max Goodwin could give us volumes - if he would come out of that dour (pronounced as in "sour") demeanor of his of late. The Lemon Grove Woman's Club (Juniors included) should demand that Betty Martin, Arva Peipenbrink, Bill and Audray Miller, Robbie Kraft, Lois Burnworth, Frank Doolin, Margarite Hensely, Vinnie and Larry Sozzani and Floyetta Teigen, contribute tapes of memoirs.

My memory is such that I cannot even hope to remember everyone, but the society would really appreciate some input. It is easy. Everyone has access to a tape recorder. Just sit down and talk into it about the old days and the anecdotes that come to mind. It is surprising how it flows once you get started. Pick a secluded spot and pour your heart out for posterity. It will be very much appreciated.

If you have any questions or suggestions for Dr. Burns, send them to P.O. Box BB, Lemon Grove, Ca. 91946

300,000 mail ballots expected

If you are unable to go to the polls on election day, or would simply prefer to vote at home, you may want to join the estimated 300,000 San Diego County voters who will vote by mail in November. To receive your mail ballot, the Registrar of Voters, urges you to apply early. A mail ballot application appears on the back cover of your sample ballot pamphlet, or an application will be mailed if you call the Registrar's Office at 694-3414. A letter requesting a ballot will also be accepted if it contains the following information: name and date of election (General Election, November 3, 1992); your name (printed); your residence address; a mailing address where the ballot is to be sent (if other than registered address); your signature.

Mail your request to: Registrar of Voters, P.O. Box 85520, San Diego, Ca 92186-5520. Mail ballot requests must be received by 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 27. The completed ballot must be returned by 8 p.m. on Election Day.

Teachers' Association endorses incumbents

Lemon Grove School District Governing Board candidates Linda Reynolds, Ilse Hanning and Lewis Zollinger have received a vote of support from members of the Lemon Grove Teachers' Association.

The Association, representing certificated staff members in the school district, voted last week to support the three candidates for November's Governing Board election.

"We were impressed with all three candidates. They are committed to quality education, and sound financial management," said Joy Harris of the Association.

The three candidates are facing five challengers for three positions on the District's Governing Board, which oversees the eight schools of the Lemon Grove School District.

Mrs. Joan Hosaka, representing the Association, explained that it considered all candidates' positions and background before deciding to support the incumbents, Reynolds, Hanning and Zollinger.

"Based on the recent experience of several East County school districts, the Teachers' Association wants to avoid the election of extremists to the Board. We are very pleased with the moderate and supportive positions of these three candidates," added Donna Masters, association president.

A.D.A.P.T. to conduct policy workshops

On Saturday, October 17, the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention Task Force (A.D.A.P.T.) will be sponsoring the first of five prevention policy workshops.

This initial workshop will be held in Supervisorial District Two at Alvarado Parkway Institute (API) Child and Adolescent Center gymnasium, from 9 a.m. to noon. A free continental breakfast will be available. The keynote speaker will be Attorney Ken Hoyt from El Cajon. Hoyt will be speaking on the nature of policy as a comprehensive and permanent strategy for ridding communities of substance abuse problems.

A.D.A.P.T. will be conducting one prevention policy workshop in each of the five Supervisorial Districts. The main objective of these workshops is to educate policymakers and community leaders on the importance of public policy strategies as a solution to alcohol and other drug problems.

The workshop will examine issues like the impact of alcohol and tobacco industry advertising on communities, the frequent sale of alcohol and tobacco to youth, and the importance of creating community events without alcohol. Workshop participants will be able to get hands-on experience in taking such public policy issues from inception to action.

To make a reservation, please call API at 466-7787 or Julie Lanthier at A.D.A.P.T., 688-7948.

Letters to the editor

Dorman supporters respond to charges by Lake and Burns

Dear Editor:

In response to the correspondence from Craig Lake and the editorial by Robert Burns printed last week, I feel compelled to offer another point of view.

First of all, in naming City Hall after former Mayor James Dorman, it was not anyone's intent to diminish the contributions of the hundreds of individuals who worked for incorporation or have helped the city the last 15 years. It is not necessary to recount the contributions of Del Lake or Bob Burns or Jack Doherty or many others, who all worked to build the finest city possible. This issue should never have been reduced to a name-dropping list of "who did better, or who did the most."

Let's look at a few facts; this city had only one mayor in its first 15 years. Despite the fact that other individuals wanted the job, every two years James Dorman was returned to the job by the colleagues who served with him on a daily basis. That is quite a political accomplishment, but more, it shows a tremendous leadership ability that was unique to Dorman. Whether one agreed with the mayor on all issues is not the point. He built a successful coalition that brought tremendous benefit to our city.

Secondly, the point that one should not name something for a living individual is fallacious. The Metropolitan Transit Development Board named its transit building after its living and current chairman, James Mills. There was no protest over this. Ted Williams was honored during his life with the naming of a San Diego parkway after him this summer. Should we only honor the dead? I do not believe so. There has been no scandal or dishonor during Dorman's reign; let's honor the man when he can enjoy it.

Third, should there be a public vote? This is a smoke screen by those who disagree with the council vote. I, too, have lost council votes, but I never called into question the motives of those who cast their vote. As a council member you take a stand; and whether you win or lose, you move on. In these terribly hard fiscal times, this city must address continuing problems of fire protection, street maintenance, park and recreation, as well as "normal" police problems. Now, we have the added burden of the homeless and serious vandalism such as graffiti. We do not have the funds to hold referendums on issues such as these, much less the naming of a building, park or street. These special elections would cost thousands of dollars and be a dereliction of our sworn duty.

Fourth, is there a conspiracy among us? Certainly not. There was a genuine effort to recognize a deserving man in an appropriate fashion. Since the Mayor's office is in the City Administration Center, it seemed like the most appropriate choice. This is not unusual, and in fact, San Diego City Hall is named the Charles C. Dail Concourse.

There was no mistake in the method used in voting. This is a procedure adopted by the first council in 1977, and followed since. It is only when personalities became involved and clashed that the method was called into question. I invite the council to review the voting procedure for the future. Review of our procedures is always welcome, such when we reviewed the purpose of Brown Bag meetings in 1988.

Finally, where does this leave us? There have been many unkind statements made and poor choices of labels used. It is time to move on. The City Council has many important issues to address and this internal squabbling does not become our office. I shall move forward with the agenda we have set for the city and ask all members of the council to set aside their differences and move ahead. We have a tremendous staff, led by one of the finest city managers and together we can bring good things to the city if we focus on the problems and seek the solution united, instead of divided.

Brian Cochran
Mayor, City of Lemon Grove

Dear Editor,

I recently returned to San Diego for a visit and was distressed to read about the flap over the naming of City Hall and the subsequent arguments over who did what in the incorporation effort.

As an active participant in all phases of incorporation, and co-chair of the incorporation campaign committee, I must admit that some of the claims made raised my eyebrows as well as my ire. In a thousand well chosen words, I could probably detail the actions, activities and contributions of all of the players, but I won't. Why? Because no one cares! Incorporation happened 15 years ago ... it was important, but on March 8, 1977, election day, it was over. The real heroes of incorporation were the volunteers who spent thousands of hours gathering signatures, knocking on doors, distributing literature, manning phone banks and posting signs. Volunteers like Mildred Huebsch and Ray Heiserman, who didn't demand that they have an official title, or have their picture in the paper, but who loved their community and wanted to make a contribution to it.

In the days following March 8, when the blush of election victory had passed, we all realized that incorporation had been the easy part ... the real challenge lay ahead.

In order to fulfill the promises of incorporation, that first City Council had two critical decisions to make. They had to choose a city manager and choose a mayor with the experience and leadership ability to not only operate a successful city, but to establish our legitimate place among the cities of the county and the state. The council chose well.

In selecting Jim Dorman to lead the council, they chose a person who had proven his leadership abilities, both on the school board and the fire district board. The citizens of Lemon Grove, however, got significantly more than they paid for. They got a mayor who not only provided well informed, caring and enlightened council leadership, but who also spent countless volunteer hours representing the city as a member of many regional boards and commissions, as President of the San Diego Division of the League of California Cities, and as a member of the State Board of Directors of the League.

While one may disagree politically with Jim, as I often did, everyone with whom he has worked over the years agrees that Jim Dorman is a class act. And it was this very favorable impression of Jim held by members of the larger San Diego and state communities that translated to their favorable impression of the city of Lemon Grove and its residents.

It is to his credit that Mayor Cochran, joined by councilmembers Heiserman and Legerton, recognized the enormously important contributions made by Mayor Dorman to the community, and chose to honor these contributions in such an appropriate manner. To them, Congratulations!

To the naysayers whose bruised egos and petty jealousies have unnecessarily clouded what should have been a happy occasion, Shame on You!

Burns would spend more time performing his elected duties and less time on the trolley and crying "foul" with his continual articles in the Lemon Grove Review, perhaps one day his name might be considered for honor.

Perhaps it is time we got some new, young blood on the council who would concentrate more on getting down to business and less time harassing each other.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

Can you imagine that the most famous and popular four-wheel drive vehicle of all time was named after a cartoon character? Well the year was 1938 and the character was Eugene, the Jeep, who made a jeep, jeep sound in the cartoon strip, Popeye, drawn by E.C. Segar. At the beginning of WWII this ever popular vehicle known in army terms as G.P. (general purpose) proved its worth. The servicemen tagged the name Jeep to their vehicle and it stuck all these years.

When I was in the Army Air Corp and headed up the office equipment repair department, they first issued me a motor scooter with side car to pickup and return the office machines. The vehicle proved near worthless and then I was issued my first Army Jeep. I had lots of good fun with my new toy. It could do almost any driving task, but the sharp turning radius could flip you fairly easily.

Because of my love for fishing in local and foreign waters, I soon acquired my first civilian Jeep. It was a 4-wheel drive 1969 Wagoneer, fully-equipped. We used it to haul all the materials down to Puertocitos, Mexico to build our hacienda. On our inaugural trip, I learned what my new car could do and couldn't do. At San Felipe, I deliberately drove off the main road into a sand dune just to show my wife what the expensive toy could do. The more I gunned it the deeper I dug that Jeep into the Mexican sand. Even by using the heavy duty wench that was on the front bumper it took all the amigos that I could muster up to get the Wagoneer back on solid road. It cost me many cervezas for my "showing off" and taught me a good lesson - "don't create problems, wait for them to happen."

On that model Jeep the front hubs had to be engaged manually to get it into 4-wheel drive. The new '74 Jeep Cherokee had automatic four-wheel drive, so that was for me. My new yellow Jeep was really something, and turned out to be the best vehicle that I ever owned.

Each mile, of the nearly 150,000 miles that I drove it, had an exciting story attached. There were many interesting tales to tell about our Jeep Cherokee, but the granddaddy of them all, and end to the Jeep era, was the day that I showed Barbara and Joe some ranch property while working for Strout Realty. Joe and I were in the front seat and Barbara was in the back. I followed what used to be an old logging road. It was grown over with weeds, so I didn't see the deep wash-out ahead. Thank God that I was only going about six miles per hour, as we hit the bottom of that drainage ditch and my "pride and joy" was totalled.

After starting so badly, the story had a happy ending. Joe and Barbara not only bought the ranch, but also the battered Jeep for $1,000. Strout and I can be thankful that this couple from Simi Valley were so nice, as they could have "sued the pants off" us.

Burns endorses Hanning

Dear Editor:

The education of our children is at a critical point in Lemon Grove as well as in all of California. Our public education system in dire need of prudent and knowledgeable management. A local School Board election may not cause much emotion in a Presidential election year but it is every bit as important as choosing a national leader.

In Lemon Grove we are blessed to have an experienced educator, a proven administrator, and a family oriented person who is willing to donate herself further to the children of Lemon Grove. Ilse Hanning accepted an interim board appointment to our school board, and is willing and able to continue in that capacity for a full term. her experience in every facet of the development of children is not to be equaled anywhere, and must not be denied in Lemon Grove. I have known her for many years and can personally attest that there could be no better person to sit on this, or any School Board, than Ilse Hanning. Please, for the sake of our children, and the future of our country, vote Ilse Hanning for school board in Lemon Grove.

Band parent hits wasted legal fees

Dear Editor:

At the Sept. 17, 1992 board meeting of the Grossmont Union High School District, a group of upset parents confronted the board. The district administration had refused to allow the Grossmont High School Band to participate in a Portuguese Cultural event in Chula Vista. One of the reasons for marching in the parade was to earn $850 toward the purchase of new band uniforms.

The basis for the refusal was that this event was somehow tied to a religious activity and was thus in violation of the separation of the Church and State. Whether the participation in this festival is legal or illegal I cannot say. What I can justifiably surmise is that the district could have purchased band uniforms for every band student had the incumbents set aside their self-serving politics and chosen not to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to unseat Dr. Davies.

I certainly hope that the voters in November will take notice of how the incumbents have wasted or misspent dollars that could have been put to better use. Especially since Dr. Davies was proven right all the way to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Having read the ballot statements of the candidates for the district, my choices will be Mr. George Vanek, Mr. John Hood and Dr. Nina Davies.

18th La Mesa Oktoberfest will roll out barrels of fun for all

If eating hot-off-the-grill German-style bratwurst, browsing among hundreds of arts and craft booths, and oscillating on a dance floor in front of a live oom-pah-pah band sounds like a good time, then La Mesa's Oktoberfest is for you.

La Mesa's 18th Annual Oktoberfest kicks off at 5 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 2, and runs through the weekend, ending on Sunday, Oct. 4 at 7 p.m.

Patterned after the world-famous Munich Oktoberfest, La Mesa's version is essentially a giant block party in the downtown village area. The streets are closed to vehicles, and in their place, 300 booths are set up, selling an assortment of arts and crafts, commercial items and food. Admission to the craft show is free.

Nearby, a large parking lot is transformed into a German-style beer garden. Inside you will find spirited oom-pah-pah bands, costumed folk dancers displaying traditional waltzes and polkas, and dance floors for adults and kids so everybody can join in the fun. If you get hungry after performing the "chicken dance," there's plenty of grilled bratwurst, pretzels and beer on tap.

Admission to the Beer Garden is $2, and children under 12 are free when accompanied by a parent. Beer sales will be halted at 9:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights. A new addition to the Beer Garden this year is non-alcoholic beer which will continue to be offered after 9:30 p.m.

Also new this year will be a Kid's Karnival, located at the west end of La Mesa Village Plaza, sponsored by the Make-A-Wish Foundation. For the second year, the section of La Mesa Blvd. stretching from Spring St. west to Date Ave. will be used, as well as part of the recently completed downtown redevelopment project, La Mesa Village Plaza.

Sponsored jointly by the La Mesa Chamber of Commerce and the La Mesa Village Merchants' Association, La Mesa's Oktoberfest is among the biggest celebrations of its kind on the West Coast.

Because of very limited parking in the village area,

Oktoberfest organizers encourage the public to ride the San Diego Trolley's East Line to the event. Riders should get off at the La Mesa Blvd. station, which is right in the middle of the Oktoberfest activities at the corner of Spring St. and La Mesa Blvd.

Transit officials report that last year 42,000 people arrived at the La Mesa Oktoberfest on the trolley.

The Oktoberfest dates and times are as follows:

Friday, Oct. 2 from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m.;

Saturday, Oct. 3 from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.; and Sunday Oct. 4 from noon to 7 p.m.

For more information, the public can call a prerecorded Oktoberfest information message at 465-3653.

Local artists again involved with Kidzart Festival

Within the courtyards and under the trees, all the park's a stage at the 6th annual Kidzart Festival celebration of the arts on October 10 and 11, when Balboa Park is transformed into a world of wonder for local schoolchildren (kindergarten through grade 9) and their families.

This year's Festival focuses on theatre arts, and runs Oct. 10 and 11, 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Workshops led by professionals in the field will include acting, stage make-up, costume and set design, as well as improvisation and mime.

Old Globe drama teacher, Linus Weiss and four backstage artists will explain what happens on the other side of the curtain. Performances by Starlight Musical Theatre, San Diego Comic Opera and Mascara Magica offer tomorrow's audiences a glimpse of today's productions.

Multidimensional and multi-ethnic, Kidzart Festival is an introduction to the arts for San Diego's children. More than 40 workshops and performances will showcase the arts of theatre, music, dance, art, storytelling, puppetry and mime.

Also, conducting lessons with The Westwind Brass and San Diego Symphony Pops guest conductor Carl Hermanns will be offered, as well as painting workshops with father-son duo Eddie Edwards, Sr. and Jr. of Spring Valley and clay sculpting with artist James Hubbell. Brenda Flanders of Lemon Grove will again be offering African mask-making workshops.

Bill Caballero of La Mesa and his Latin band, S.O.S., will perform on Saturday from 4-5 p.m. at the Organ Pavilion. The 11-piece, two-vocalist band will play Latin Jazz numbers as well as give children an introduction to Latin rhythms. Also the festival will feature the ancient Oriental art of origami and performances of the California Ballet.

"We need to make this a brighter, more beautiful world for San Diego's children to grow up and live in," says Kidzart creator Elaine Krieger. As funding for the arts in public schools becomes more scarce, she believes that programs such as Kidzart are vitally important. "Our youngsters have sports and academics in school. They need the arts to round out their lives," she says. "The arts provide beauty in a world where it is lacking. Participating in the arts enhances children's self-esteem and encourages them to see the beauty inside themselves."

Last year, more than 50,000 attended the free festival. Free parking is available at the park and at the Balboa Naval Hospital parking lot on Park Blvd.

Air show set for Gillespie Field

Gillespie Field's Annual "Careers in Aviation Day" has been expanded this year to include an open house in order to attract more community residents and increase the diversity of displays and aircraft.

The event is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 10, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Admission and parking are free.

"While previous events were dedicated to students and those interested in aviation as a career, we were flooded with requests to open the event up to the general public and move it to the weekend," said County of San Diego Public Works Director Granville M. Bowman. "This gives us the opportunity to invite a greater variety of exhibitors."

The main attraction at the event remains the static aircraft displays. Organizers are expecting a wide variety of planes, helicopters and experimental aircraft from the military, local law enforcement agencies and private aviation enthusiasts.

Connolly and Baldwin debate highlights differences

Candidates for the 77th Assembly District, Tom Connolly (Democrat) of Lemon Grove and Steve Baldwin (Republican) squared-off recently in a televised debate on Cox Cable.

Television and radio personality, Fred Lewis, moderated the forum as the candidates received telephone questions from the viewing audience and from Union/Tribune reporter, Mike Smolens.

Baldwin, a conservative, pro-life Republican, stuck to the issues of cutting government, cutting taxes, and privatization of government services. He was not specific how he was going to cut government and which taxes he was going to cut, but reassured the audience that he was attending forums on how to privatize government services.

Both Connolly (the pro-choice candidate) and Baldwin (pro-life) expressed opposition to Proposition 167 which would create a two-tier tax system. Connolly favored creating more jobs by cutting the sales tax to ease the burden on businesses and consumers and stimulate the economy.

Baldwin believes that parents should be able to choose the school their children would attend using the voucher system initiative. Connolly, on the other hand, feels that the voucher system would destroy public education in this state.

One of the callers asked Tom Connolly if he was an A.C.L.U. Lawyer. Connolly stated that he had never belonged to or worked for the A.C.L.U. Connolly works for the County of San Diego as a child advocate attorney at Juvenile Hall.

A caller from La Mesa asked Baldwin if he believed "that there are witches out there." Baldwin chose to respond to the next question by the same caller that he believes children should be able to pray in public schools. Baldwin stated that he believes that school boards have the discretion to ban books from schools and school libraries.

Baldwin concluded by saying that he would cut government, cut taxes, and privatize public services.

Connolly does not believe in censorship and he believes that instilling ethics begins in the home and churches.

Connolly stated in his conclusion, that he wants to be the kind of Assemblyman that would represent all of the people and forge alliances that would benefit the people of the 77th Assembly District.

LIDO'S

The staff at LIDO'S do not over-promise or boast about their popularity. But, from the editors point of view, there is simply no better place to enjoy an authentic Italian meal. Let them help you with any banquet you're planning, too. Now's the time to plan for a holiday banquet.

At LIDO'S they understand that a little relaxation, some good company and good food is something we all look forward to. And because they won't change their friendly way of running LIDO'S, you can depend on an enjoyable visit every time you stop in. They simply wouldn't have it any other way.

MILLER PAVING CORP.

As editors of the 1992 Review, we don't believe there's another company around that does things quite as expertly as MILLER PAVING CORP. They are located at 9236 Olive Drive in Spring Valley, phone 465-3725.

And the reason they are so highly thought of is because they feel they should be the best they can be...and doing every paving job the best way it can be done. They are experts when it comes to the finest paving for streets, parking lots, driveways, shopping centers, mobile home parks, patios, sub-divisions, apartment complexes and many other applications.

Also, the folks who manage MILLER PAVING CORP. never did believe in changing things for changes sake.
